

NORTH CAROLINA WORLD TRADE ASSOCIATION

Mission

The NCWTA promotes growth of trade between North Carolina and the world by providing education and networking opportunities and advocacy for Carolinians engaged in exporting, importing, and supporting global trade activities.

Looking for new markets why not the world!

In industrial economies and the emerging countries, there are business opportunities for a wide variety of products and services. There are trade opportunities for within and beyond this country's shores that could multiply your company's income many times over.

Too complicated and risky? Not at all!

Hundreds of North Carolina businesses of all sizes are exporting and importing successfully. The NCWTA has been the key that has helped many of these firms move into world commerce on a sound and profitable basis.

Regardless of your product or service, there is a good chance that a world market exists for you. As a member of NCWTA, you join other world traders across the State who stand ready to share with their ideas, experiences, and suggestions with you.

If you are already trading on a global scale, this is an opportunity to utilize more effectively the resources of private industry, state, and federal government agencies to broaden your market sphere.

The NCWTA is the perfect environment for "international networking" and thus is a leading source of vital and timely information and contacts.

Idea Exchange

Membership to the North Carolina World Trade Association including leading manufacturers, distributors, banking, institutions, service organizations, governmental agencies, and many more. Collectively, these individual and company members represent the richest pool of fresh ideas on world trade to be found anywhere in North Carolina. You can benefit from the experience of fellow members of the NCWTA, and add your own ideas to help others, at any of the six Chapter's meetings.

Legislative Influence

State and Federal State and federal legislation vitally affects the progress of world trade. Through NCWTA you can add your own voice and contribute to a strong team effort aimed at keeping world markets readily accessible to North Carolina businesses.

Market Information

The North Carolina World Trade Association draws on a multitude of sources for current world market information. Key contacts include federal and state agencies involved in the international trade network.

Years of Service

The North Carolina World Trade Association (NCWTA) functions as a nonprofit, state-wide umbrella corporation for six chapters. Individual membership in an affiliated local chapter automatically confers membership in the state association.

Your NCWTA membership and participation are significant investments toward your future in international trade. You may obtain membership applications and further information at your local chapter. You may access local chapter sites via:

NORTH CAROLINA WORLD TRADE ASSOCIATION

We are a volunteer association of business people, supported by action-oriented federal, state, and local government officials, educators, and others.

Our goal is to help increase American trade, especially exports to help reduce the US trade deficit with the rest of the world.

We are 500 members strong, in six different chapters across North Carolina, from many different endeavors, all working to create jobs by promoting world trade, and enjoying each other's company in the process.

We enjoy a social hour and luncheon or dinner, followed by presentations from excellent speakers on topical or ongoing trade issues.

Our biggest asset is our membership: combined we offer the knowledge; service and experience that professionals need to fully participate in global trade.

Many of us were new to international business when we joined NCWTA so we understand the issues and welcome the opportunity to help new members get started.

We are one of the largest State associations in the country. We are committed to improving international trade for North Carolina.
